

Ayurvedic-Life International develops products that are a "perfect balance of nature and science" by working with materials found in nature. We have developed relationships with our suppliers so that where products are made from wild-crafted materials, harvesting methods are developed that do not severely injure the plant sources, and thereby minimize any impact on the local ecosystem. In cases where the materials are plantation grown, we work with our suppliers to see that good husbandry practices are used, and that they have little environmental impact. We have also developed "green" manufacturing processes to limit any ecological impact.
